

Community Treatment Orders: Overview and Recommendations

The Centre for Addiction and Mental Health

The Centre for Addiction and Mental Health was created through the successful merger of the Addiction Research Foundation, the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, the Donwood Institute and the Queen Street Mental Health Centre, and is a teaching hospital fully affiliated with the University of Toronto.

Building on the legacies of four outstanding organizations, the Centre offers a unique model for understanding and helping people with addiction and mental illness, for preventing substance abuse and for promoting mental health. It operates central clinical and research facilities in Toronto, Ontario, as well as 12 community offices across the province. While the Centre's work focuses on the needs of Ontario communities, our impact extends across the country and internationally.

About the Centre's Best Advice Papers

The Centre's "Best Advice" papers are designed to present the most up-to-date knowledge on emerging issues and are ideal for professionals in the mental health and addictions fields, policy makers, and others who wish to understand the latest information on key issues.
